

Not so many years ago a high school diploma was considered the symbol of a good basic education — until some of the school reformers took it upon themselves to assume arbitrarily that the youngsters were going on to college.

At this point emphasis was shifted away from basic schooling and complaints began to be heard from parents and employers that a high school education wasn't what it used to be. The criticism was justified because whatever is presumed to be done in the name of free public education in this democracy must be done before the final year in high school, where the free system terminates.

Now I note from an Imperial Type Metal magazine article by William Feather that the professional educators have suddenly discovered 80 per cent of high school graduates don't go to college, and therefore the basic education idea is to become paramount again in high school courses.

Here's the story as Mr. Feather gives it:

An eight-year study of American high schools, laboriously conducted at great expense, revealed that the graduates are not even "competent in the use of the English language."

That is something everybody knew but nobody did anything about.

The promise is that something will be done, that the high school curriculum will be overhauled.

The new idea is to gear the high schools to serve the interests of youngsters who will never go to college. The presumption heretofore has been that all were going to college, although the fact is that five out of six don't.

If the youth of this country can be taught in school to read, write, (including operation of a typewriter), speak and figure, the gain will be tremendous. Dancing, music, sewing, cooking, and carpentry are all right as side lines, but the schools must bear down on the fundamentals of learning.

U. S. to Try Again to Nail Bridges

By JAMES F. DONOVAN
WASHINGTON (UP) — Justice Department sources predicted today the government will make a new attempt to strip Harry Bridges of his U. S. citizenship and deport him.

The department said officially it is "studying all aspects of the case" in the wake of a Supreme Court decision reversing Bridges' 1950 perjury conviction and restoring U. S. citizenship to the Australian-born boss of West Coast longshoremen.

But department officials said privately they do not believe the government will abandon its 15-year-old effort to boot Bridges out of this country as a Communist alien.

Although several courses of legal action are open to the Justice Department, informed sources said the most likely step is to start a new denaturalization suit against Bridges in the federal district court at San Francisco.

Heavy Damage in Auto Wreck Here

Auto damage resulted yesterday when automobiles driven by Cleveland Fisher, Negro, and M. N. Youum, collided at Laurel and Walker Streets. Investigating City Officers said Fisher was charged with having no driver's license following the wreck.

Negro Home Is Damaged by Fire

A Negro residence near Yerger school was gutted by fire shortly before noon today. Firemen said the blaze apparently started from a cook stove. The fire was extinguished before the walls collapsed.

PSC Asked to Make Hope Lower RR Rate

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Thirty residents of rural areas near Hope today asked the Arkansas Public Service Commission to order the city to reduce the electric power rates it charges to them.

The petitioners said that the city, which operates its own water and power system, was charging higher rates to rural subscribers than to city subscribers.

The complainants also declared that the city was diverting to other purposes power and water collections which they said should either be used for bond retirement or rate reduction.

The petition asked that the city be forced to reduce rural rates to the level of city rates and that it be restrained from the alleged improper diversion of utility funds.

McClellan Sees Approval of Airforce Plan

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. John H. McClellan predicted today that the Senate will approve Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg's cut-rate expansion program for the Air Force.

The Arkansas Democrat, a member of the military appropriations subcommittee, said he thinks the Senate will vote "within $300,000,000 of the estimated sum which Vandenberg yesterday recommended to finance the Air Force build up in the 1954 fiscal year which begins July 1."

Vandenberg's new program, $1,435,000,000 more costly than President Eisenhower's and $3,655,000,000 cheaper than former President Truman's, was submitted to the appropriations subcommittee yesterday. It would realize the 143-airwing goal of Air Force planners — but not until mid-1957.

Senate Democrats were expected to line up behind Vandenberg's proposal as a likely compromise point in the dispute over President Eisenhower's defense budget. But one Democrat, Sen. Burnet R. Maybank, said he is "worried" about the 1957 date for the 143 wings.

Maybank said he wants to study the program before he commits himself to it.

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbot also are studying the proposal. Both have testified that no funds are needed by the Air Force beyond the $11,688,000,000 requested in President Eisenhower's revised budget.

Vandenberg's proposal would speed up, by exactly one year, the 120-air wings now programmed in Mr. Eisenhower's budget and make that force available in the middle of 1954 instead of 1955.

The plan would restore some of the funds cut from plane procurement, personnel expenses, base construction, and operation costs and permit the air force to have 1,035,000 men in uniform by July 1, 1955, instead of about 960,000.

Meantime Rep. Samuel W. York (D-Cal.) made public an Air Force report showing that Mr. Eisenhower's budget cuts made necessary cancellation of "certain new projects" which had been scheduled as replacements for "existing weapons systems."

Truce May Not Be the Answer to the Korean Problem But It Certainly Should Be Tried

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (UP) — A truce is not often a happy settlement of a problem — whether it be a schoolboy feud, a marital argument, or a war in Korea.

But, since time sometimes cures more human ills than common sense, a truce often serves as a purpose for all parties. It allows an interval in which the situation may change.

That may be the great gift of a truce in Korea. A ripening of political reasoning in Asia may do more to achieve a balanced peace than continuance of the three-year war in which the U. N. decisively defeated the initial enemy, North Korea, fought inconclusively against a second enemy, Red

Ike's Talk on Book Burners Called Pitiful

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. McCarran (D-Nev.) today labeled as "a pitiful thing" President Eisenhower's speech advising a college graduating class not to "join the book burners."

"He showed no knowledge of his subject," McCarran told newsmen. "It's to bad a man in his position doesn't know more about it. Someone must have sold him a bill of goods."

McCarran is a member of the Senate internal security subcommittee which has been searching for Communist influences in schools and colleges.

The President, in a commencement address, said that book burners were a pitiful thing.

Hempstead Residents Fined at Texarkana

TEXARKANA — Traffic misdemeanors comprised the bulk of the Monday afternoon session of Arkansas municipal court. Included were the following:

Frankie Brown, 26, Rt. 2, Hope, fined $50 and sentenced to a day in jail following conviction on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Brown was also ordered not to drive in Arkansas for the next 30 days. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

Involved in an auto wreck with Brown was Logan Williams, 20, of Fulton, who was fined $5 and costs for speeding.

Taylor, Wis. (UP) — A released prisoner of war, spurned by the hometown sweetheart he dreamed of in a Communist prison stockade, honeymooned with another girl today.

Softspoken Marine Cpl. Lione E. Peterson and Delores Larson, both 21, exchanged vows here yesterday in a small, quiet ceremony. Only immediate members of both families were present.

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (UP) — Two 16-year-old Boy Scouts, missing four days in rugged, desolate Arizona mountains where they sought legendary lost ruins, were reported in "very good spirits" today after their rescue by two Navajo Indians.

Bud McIntyre and Phil Crowley, both of Des Moines, Ia., were found some 30 miles deep in "forbidden" Nakai Canyon, a few miles from the Utah border, by Navajos John Fat and Neska Yai.

FT. SMITH (UP) — Two soldiers were killed accidentally on the hand grenade range at nearby Camp Chaffee today.

Capt. John J. Mawn, public relations officer for the camp, declined to reveal details of the accident. He said only that the two men were killed, and a third was injured, on the hand grenade range.

Shipping Tieup Temporarily Averted

NEW YORK (UP) — A tie-up of Atlantic and Gulf Coast ships was averted at least temporarily today.

Joseph Curran, president of the CIO National Maritime Union, agreed to maintain the "status quo" pending outcome of a negotiating session called by federal mediators for 3 p. m.

The union's contract with shipping operators expired last midnight, and Curran had indicated the union's traditional policy of "no contract, no work" would go into effect.

In agreeing to meet employer's and mediators at this afternoon's session, Curran said, however, that "we are not permitting any new signing on for new voyages."

Waterfront activity meanwhile appeared normal. The union is seeking a wage increase.

The liner United States, one of the vessels that would be affected by a no work policy, arrived from Europe and docked without incident at 7:15 a. m. She is due to sail at 4 p. m. for a drydock inspection at Newport News, Va.

Curran insisted that any work stoppage would not constitute a strike, but would be a matter of "no contract, no work."

Negotiations here on contracts covering container tankers were held separately and continued past the midnight expiration time, but these talks also broke down when Curran, at about 3 a. m., walked out of the meeting and said the tanker representatives were treating the sessions "as a joke." A company spokesman later said he expects talks to resume about 4 p. m.

Union spokesman said separate contract talks for ocean and Great Lakes colliers have been going on in Boston and Chicago.

What effect a tieup would have was not immediately clear. Maritime work stoppages normally develop slowly, with NMU seamen walking off their ships as they reach port.

New Mexico Warden Is Too Tough

SANTA FE, N. M. (UP) — Convicts at New Mexico State Penitentiary thought Deputy Warden Ralph Tahash was too tough and so they rebelled yesterday, demanding his removal.

Tahash proved they were right. For 7 1/2 hours he had been held in the prison hospital by some 25 convicts armed with meat cleavers and homemade knives. State police swarmed outside, reluctant to make a move that would bring harm to the hostages.

Gov. Edwin L. Mechem, who had arrived shortly after the early-morning outbreak, had arranged a conference with convict ring-leaders, but before it could be held prisoners in Cell Block 2 seized seven more guards who were bringing them lunch.

They everything happened at once.

One of the ringleaders in the hospital, Homer Lee Gossett, jerked a gas grenade from his pocket and tossed it at Tahash. He grabbed it and threw it back. The convicts retreated toward the rear of the hospital.

Tahash saw his chance. He rushed to the window and got a revolver and carbine from state police outside.

"Then I went into the room where the convicts were," he said later. "When the guard that Gossett was holding as hostage lunged away to one side, I shot Gossett in the throat. I think he was

West Anchor of Allied Line Seized by Chinese; Top Truce Meet Tonight

Fateful Session Could Pave Way to End of War

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN

MUNSAN (UP) — Top level truce negotiators meet in Panmunjom in a few hours for a fateful session which could pave the way to a quick end of nearly three years of fighting in Korea.

The meeting was set for 11 a. m. tomorrow (8 p. m. tonight, CST.).

It was requested by the U. N. command even as fresh Chinese regiments hammered weakened Allied lines on the East Central Front.

Approval of an armistice agreement by the negotiators would precede the official signing by top military commanders of both sides.

Staff officers who have been putting the finishing touches on an armistice since June 10 will meet after the top brass session, the U. N. command said, indicating they are not through with their work.

One group of officers has been reported drafting a detailed plan for exchanging prisoners of war. Another group, armed with maps, has been raving a line of contact which has changed almost continually along a 40-mile sector where U. S. and South Korean troops battled perhaps 40,000 Reds.

Staff officers drawing the demarcation line worked long after dark, indicating to some observers that they hoped to complete the line before the full-dress meeting Wednesday.

The U. N. command said Wednesday's session will be secret, as Continued on Page Two

Dulles Hints at Broad Far East Deal

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

WASHINGTON (UP) — Secretary of State Dulles has revived speculation that the Eisenhower administration may seek a broad Far Eastern settlement with the Communists following a Korean armistice.

The administration, Dulles told his news conference yesterday, has not definitely confirmed the stand taken last year by United Nations negotiators that the political conference now scheduled to open 90 days after the prospective truce should confine itself to strictly Korean questions.

President Eisenhower, the secretary noted, said in his April 19 address to the American Society of Newspaper Editors that "any armistice in Korea that merely released aggressive armies to attack elsewhere would be a fraud." Dulles told a questioner that conceivably the post-armistice conference might

Few Baseball Trades Are Important

NEW YORK, (AP)—Starting today, the major league clubs will have to do with what they have until Sept. 1 when the stretch drive gets under way except for waiver deals.

There were few trades of importance before the deadline at midnight last night, but if any team was strengthened to any extent it was the Cleveland Indians, who bartered four of their operatives for four Detroit Tigers.

Art Houtteman, Joe Ginsberg, Owen Vreeland and Bill Wright all went to the Indians, while Ray Boone, Steve Grunick, Al Ackland and Dick Wolk joined the Tigers.

This is bound to help the Indians, although it comes in the form of closing the barn door when the cow has disappeared. The cow in this case is the New York Yankees, who are 10½ games ahead of the Indians.

Grunick and Boone probably will help the Tigers, but they certainly are not the answer to getting the Bengals, out of last place.

All told, 20 players changed major league uniforms in the past four days.

It is estimated that American farmers produce $200,000 silver fix for pellets a year.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, (AP)—In the wake of the Yankees' backing and playing of the last remaining Indian settlement on Lake Erie, columnist Ed McCauley of the Cleveland News says in a syndicated column:

"Organized baseball is in trouble. Its affluence will be aggravated seriously if the four-time winners continue to make a joke of the fan race."

True words were seldom spoken. If the American League backs it, it has a headache in its various television problems. Just wait until Casey Stengel's unwary increase their lead to 18 or 20 games about in August.

Who, for instance, beyond a few homeless knotholes from the Browns would be interested in watching the log team win its 19th straight tonight at the expense of the St. Louis Browns, losers of 14 in a row? It could get worse than that, though not much.

A McCauley goes on to say no body wishes the Yankees to let up. "The stakes of balancing the league belong to the club behind them, not to the conquering leader," he writes. But in the following paragraphs Ed concedes there is no prospect of relief soon.

"Doragely, patiently—and no doubt expensively—the clubs which trail the Yankees will have to duplicate their operation, not only on the field but in the front office. So far only one owner, Tom Yawkey of Boston, has shown the ability and the disposition to match rickshaws with the champions."

Coming from Cleveland, where the suffering must be intense, these remarks are unusually tolerant and well timed. They are not the cry of the wounded, but simply a statement of fact—that the American League have a mess on its hands. The Yankees are much too good for their opposition, and attendance is going to suffer the remainder of the summer.

At least a half-dozen local fans who make an occasional visit to Yankee Stadium have told me in recent days they are through for this year, at least. They don't blame the Yank players for whomping it up and going for that $4,000 World Series cut. They just are no longer are interested when there is no pennant race.

HOPE USES ONE BIG INNING TO DEFEAT FLYERS

Eight straight victories are behind the Legionnaires, the latest a 2-1 victory at the expense of the Mineral Springs Flyers there last night.

It was a scoreless ball game until the fourth when Bill Martin singled to a run. In the fifth Hope tied it up tallying seven times on five hits and three walks. Agam Martin was the clutch hitter, snapping out a triple with the bases loaded. Mineral Springs' lone score was in the final inning on a single and a double.

Ed Nix was the winning hurler, allowing five hits, one run, walked two and struck out eight. B. Dudy was the loser with seven outs on nine hits, walked six and struck out one. Thompson, his relief, allowed one run on five hits.

Wednesday night the Nashville Cubs will return to Hope for their third try against the Legionnaires who hold two victories over them. Huddleston will hurl for Hope.

Ghostly Hoofbeats
by Norman A. Fox

SYNOPSIS
To clear up a blight on the memory of his illustrious father, Sheriff Flint Manning, young Cole Manning (he turned to his native Bootjack country, he meant to apprehend the long lost Phantom Bandit who years before had managed to elude his parent. But Cole Manning's mission had failed, just as his father's had failed.

CHAPTER TWO
THE LIQUOR had warmed Manning's belly and loosened his tongue.

"Most of what happened down there I have to guess about," he said. "At the time I asked you for the badge, I had only Sheriff Burke Griffin's report to the papers to go on. He'd arrested some queer old galeot in the Bootjack country named Packrat Purdy. Packrat had a habit of telling home anything that wasn't nailed down. First place Griffin always looked for anything stolen was in Purdy's shack. When somebody's saddle turned up missing a month or so ago, Sheriff Griffin went poking around Purdy's place just as a matter of course. He found the saddle, all right—and that wasn't all. He likewise found that jewelry that was stolen in that twenty-four-year-old robbery. There wasn't any sign of the currency or the mail, but it was the same jewelry, sure enough."

Flowers grinned. "I remember Packrat; he was down there in my day. He's touched, but he's not the kind to do armed robbery. A child's brain in a whiskered head, that's Packrat. You can bet your last blue chip he ran across that loot some place and packed it home."

Manning nodded. "That's exactly the way I figured it. So my first chore was to have a talk with Packrat Purdy and start back-trailing from whatever he told me. I planned as carefully as I could. I might have gone to Manning by train or stage coach. But suppose Griffin had spread the word that Flint Manning's kid was returning to his father's old town. I thought likely they'd have a brass band out to meet me, even if they had to go to Butte to borrow one. But I was a marshal, not a visiting celebrity. So I eased up to the basin on horseback, and I had my first look at it early one afternoon. There it was, all that wide sweep of country below me. I'd been on the Maries so long I'd almost forgotten the Bootjack. Do you remember how it looks, Senator?"

"Ah, yes," Tom Flowers said, and his was an old man's face softened by the recollection of a boyhood friend.

Race Track Issue to Be Decided

FORREST CITY, Ark., (AP)—All night prayer meetings in at least four churches ended here at 7 a.m. today as ministers made a final appeal to St. Francis County voters to defeat an East Arkansas horse race track proposal at the polls.

However, anti-race track forces did not leave the whole job of winning a special election on the track to the power of prayer.

They added practical politics—such as baby sitters for voters, cars to haul voters to the polls, and a telephone campaign to get out the vote.

Browns Will Have Turn With Yanks

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

They lead the lambs to slaughter at Yankee Stadium tonight.

The pore die St. Louis Browns, who can't rightly remember when they last enjoyed prosperity in the victory column, come snuck up against the powerful New York Yankees, winners of 18 straight.

One more victory and the Yankees will tie the American League winning-streak record which their 1947 club shares with the 1906 Chicago White Sox.

The Browns, who haven't won a game in two weeks, are well on their way to a few records of their own. They've dropped 14 straight, an all-time mark for St. Louis clubs, and are within six games of the American and major league losing record.

Just to make the record prospects even brighter for the Yankees who already have made a 100-game lead, the Browns will stick around for three more games after tonight, then Detroit, the only team with a poorer record than St. Louis, comes in for a four-game set.

Post Office Soon to Ask Rate Boost

By BETTY PRYOR

WASHINGTON, (UP)—The Post Office Department will propose boosts in first, second and third class postage rates to help out its multi-million-dollar deficit, an informed source said today.

The rate hikes will be submitted to Congress for approval within a few days.

For the moment, the department isn't saying exactly how much of a boost it will seek in the various mail categories. But it is expected to recommend a four-cent stamp for ordinary letters—at least those going out-of-town. Out-of-town first class letter rates have been frozen at three cents for nearly 21 years, while rates on local letters went up from two to three cents in 1944.

Sweden was an important factor in the settlement of what is now the United States, having founded a colony on the Delaware river in 1639.

cies devise, and if the rules were properly pursued, desert orders would have to be issued. This particularly applies to the State Department, which is unusually apt in designating things by what they are not—as, for instance, "The Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission."

This Commission is in no sense neutral. It consists of five members, Sweden, Switzerland, Poland, Czechoslovakia and India. Of the five, Poland and Czechoslovakia are Soviet satellites. Their foreign policies and activities are controlled by the Kremlin as positively and as literally as the foreign affairs of the States of New York and Illinois are controlled by the State Department.

It is an historic inexactitude to regard them as separate and sovereign states. They have been conquered by Soviet Russia, Poland is completely a Russian province over which a Russian marshal, of Polish origin, presides. Czechoslovakia lost the last vestige of independence when Jan Masaryk committed suicide.

India led the movement among Asiatic and African nations against the United States. It is famous to regard India as other than an opponent of American policy in Asia. It is because of Indian pressures that Great Britain, to hold the Commonwealth together, was forced to adopt an anti-American policy concerning China, and a trader's policy concerning the Korean War.

Therefore, out of a commission of five, two are Russian states; one is pro-Russian. In a word, Russia has three votes out of five. Sweden is strictly a neutral country, frightened to death by the propensity of Russian forces in Europe. Sweden could be occupied by Soviet Russia in a matter of hours. It is impossible to accept "neutral" commission, with Russia holding two seats on it while the United States has none, is to give a fanciful name to an historic outrage, which, had it been committed by Dean Acheson, would have aroused the full anger of American public opinion. Yet, it seems to me that what would have been wrong had it been done by Harry Truman and Dean Acheson is wrong no matter who does it.

This proposal, including the names of the member states, originated in India. The Soviet countries made a pretense of rejecting it, which has now proved to have been a trap for us into which we blithely walked. Had Soviet Russia accepted this plan offhand, the likelihood is that the United States would have rejected it. So they played a game and we have lost. We have lost the first war in our history.

And where do we go from here? The fact is that no nation can any longer risk itself by associating its future with American policy. This country lost 136,000 casualties in Korea. At least 25,000 Americans have been killed there. Yet, we turn over prisoners of war, many of whom are violently anti-Communist, to a Soviet-filled Commission.

Gas is used to make paint look better, last longer!

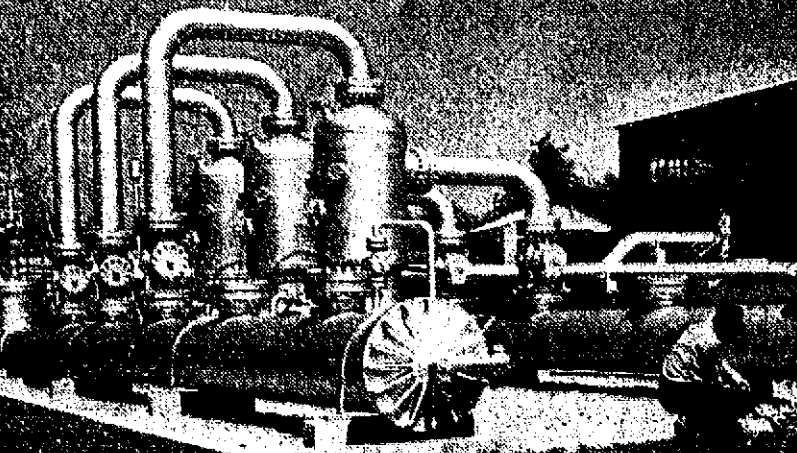

Like a lot of other things, the paint you buy today is a much better product than it was just a few years ago. It spreads more evenly, has a smoother finish, and a much longer life. One reason paint is better is gas. Some paint ingredients such as resins and oils are "cooked," and to prevent losses from scorching the amount of heat applied must be exactly controlled. Recently developed radiant gas burners make possible critical control of exacting high temperatures. The result is a uniform paint of superior quality—a paint that will give your house and all painted surfaces greater protection, longer.

Resins and oils, the basic vehicle of paint and enamel, are cooked in large gas-fired kettles. After the vehicle and pigments are mixed the paint passes over a mill as pictured below—notice the smoothness and uniform mixture. Gas is supplied to the Sherwin-Williams plant, Cleveland, by The East Ohio Gas Co., a customer of Texas Eastern.

Piping and walkways at Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation's Barton, Alabama, compressor station gleam with new aluminum paint. The neatness that's characteristic of all installations along Texas Eastern's 4200-mile pipeline system is the result of a constant maintenance program that keeps grounds and equipment in tiptop operating condition.
